

email: tomsenn@joimail.com

April 20, 2008

04-233

The Secretary
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th St. SW
Washington, DC 20554

Attention: Chief, Media Bureau

Due to the intent of the government to thwart the ministry and good of Christian radio, I believe it is emphatically significant that my voice be heard. Please take into consideration that Christian radio is one of the few remaining venues that offers encouragement and sound counsel to families and the general public in today's culture. Christian radio provides effective and positive help to enhance the quality of the lives of people, especially children and teens, shaping them into responsible and productive citizens of this country. As a mother of two sons, Christian radio offered a constructive alternative to their music choices and was an asset for the child-rearing process.

To confine Christian radio would also signify the communistic, hellish shaping of a once-free country that was primarily founded for the freedom to worship God. To bind the ministry of wholesome airwave activity that promotes integrity, fidelity and sobriety, but allows vile, life-destroying, animalistic programming to continue, could possibly throw this nation into it's most self-destructive, self-condemning days.

Actions against Christian radio, which in reality are actions against Christians, indicates that the interests of children and families are no longer of importance and consideration in the future of the United States. A country without the voice of Christian concepts and Christian music is one that will not be able to stand.

God have mercy.

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads 'Glenda Wheat'.

Glenda Wheat
7422 Rolling Meadows
Hobbs, NM 88242

To: The Secretary, Federal Communications Commission
Cc: Missouri Senators and Congressmen
From: Cheryl Botkins, Bunceton, MO
4/18/08

Re: MB Docket 04-233, Comments in response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Dear Secretary:

I listen to KLOVE radio and many other Christian radio stations, along with very local radio stations in my rural area. After reviewing some of the proposed changes with MB Docket 04-233, I feel my rights as a citizen of the USA are not being upheld here, or that they may be terminated in the very near future. Let alone, my rights to freedom of religion.

I am a person of Christian faith, and would like to know that I can freely turn on the radio and hear the gospel in sermons and songs, knowing that what I am hearing is not compromised by who is allowing the information on the radio, from a community advisory board. This community advisory board may or may not be of spiritual background, therefore uneducated with what is approved to be on the radio. However, this issue could pertain to many other types of radio as well.

Many of the additional proposed changes look like they could impose additional fees for radio stations to stay on the air, legal and operational. Christian radio stations are funded mainly from donations from listeners, and adding these changes could very well cause these type of funded radio stations to shut down due to the unnecessary costs.

Please reconsider many of the changes that would affect the broadcasting of Christian radio and do not approve this docket as a law. As a Christian, it is hard enough to get the gospel into the world, due to law changes of how we can express our faith. Please do not take this away; this would be a very big step towards taking away the Right to Freedom of Religion and the Right to Freedom of Speech.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Botkins

April 22, 2008

Dear Gentlemen and Ladies,

I am writing you to let you know the importance of KLOVE radio station. Listening to KLOVE provides positive music and helps you to get through the day. KLOVE has really helped me in various situations and you actually feel uplifted while listening to KLOVE. There are days when you feel down and KLOVE honestly lifts you up. If everyone in the world listened to KLOVE this world would be a much better place to live in, more peaceful and more positive (happier people). My family enjoys KLOVE as much as I do. My daughters are 23 and 26 and KLOVE is the radio station that they listen to. My daughters have shared with me that KLOVE really helps them to have a better day. KLOVE provides great support and I want my family to be able to continue having KLOVE radio as the station that we are able to continue enjoying throughout the day and evening our entire life. Please take this request seriously and understand that my family and the world really need KLOVE for support and a positive lifestyle. Thank you very much and may God bless you and yours.

Very Sincerely,

Nancy Burnham

Nancy Burnham

PO Box 738

Wheat Ridge CO 80034-0738

MB Docket No. 04-233, Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.

April 23, 2008

The Secretary
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554
Attn: Chief, Media Bureau.

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing in regards to the changes you are considering in regards to localism. While I understand the concern and have heard the arguments for and against this issue, I am writing to express my concern for the perhaps unintended negative consequences on the local radio stations we listen to in our area of Central Wisconsin. I believe that these changes threaten our freedom of speech and freedom of religion and they must not be enacted. I do understand and favor our airwaves not being sold off to an extremely limited ownership and repertoire of programming but I don't see these rules as doing that so much as I see them harming the good variety and programming that we have available here. I know where I can go to hear programs produced locally and to receive information on local news, election coverage, and weather.

I listen to a variety of radio stations that I believe will be impacted negatively due to these proposed rules. College radio, Local am stations, Wisconsin Public Radio as well as Christian Family Radio. I enjoy being able to turn my dial and find what suits me. I don't favor the requirement that these diverse radio stations be required to take programming advice from advisory boards that don't suit their specific "flavor." I wouldn't want my Christian radio station to be forced against its conscience to comply any more that I would expect our local college radio station or WPR to broadcast gospel messages. I am seriously against these ideas.

Neither do I want to wonder if my local radio stations are going to be allowed to renew their license or not or are going to be required to jump through increasingly complicated hoops and spend more time and resources than necessary.

I also find that in light of the change proposed to staff a radio station 24/7 that I would have to pay more to fund my local non for profit radio stations just to keep up with this change which I find unnecessary and believe this must not happen.

Lastly I believe that these rules must not be imposed because they would have the opposite affect and would reduce the amount of local radio shows I enjoy by forcing these fine stations especially the listener funded ones off the air because of the increased financial hardship these rules would cause.

Thank you for your service to our country and for your time.

Respectfully,

Elizabeth A Whelan
211 15th Ave N
Wisconsin Rapids, WI 54495

04-233

Ray McKelligott
1536 A. Della Ln.
Paradise, Ca. 95969
530-8761183

Secretary of FCC;

My name is Ray; I am very concerned about the impact the FCC could have on the Freedom of the the most precious message I've ever heard or been graced to know And that is the life saving message of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Without it I certainly would have perished many years ago. Although I'm disabled and live on A modest income, I'm alive. I have struggled with a chronic mental illness for over 35 Years and it is only through the positive and encouraging music and ministry of Christian radio that I am able to function in our society, the world is not the same as it was when I was growing up and it frightens me the direction it is going. Having children and grandchildren is the most blessed of gifts I have received and sharing my faith and hope With them is truly precious. One of the only ways I can do that is through the beautiful Christian music and ministry on Christian radio. Please do not hinder their ability to share their music and ministry, it is of vital importance and hope. Knowing I'm not alone is Sweet music in itself and Christian radio links me to the world of Jesus Christ love. I do not isolate myself and am out in the community everyday. I work very closely with a mental health program and so much of my success is in listening to Christian radio.

Sincerely; In Prayer;
Ray McKelligott

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "Ray McKelligott".

APRIL 22, 08'

MB Docket No. 04-233
Comments in Response to Localism
Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Denise Jolly
1612 Cimmaron
Midland, Texas 79705-7458

APR 25 2008

FCC
445 12th St. SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Sir:

I am writing in response upon hearing what the FCC is proposing. I am shocked to learn that you are considering denying our FREEDOM of SPEECH. Radio stations such as K-Love that are Christian based stations would be those hardest hit. Why should a Christian program have to take advice from an advisory board with different beliefs and values? We could have atheists demanding representation on a Christian radio show. How insane is that? Also, every 3 months the station would have to show how what has been said over that time reflects the interests of a cross section of local residents---even local residents who do not share our beliefs. The FCC would also be driving up costs by eliminating labor saving technological enhancements that make it possible at least part time to operate without an employee on the premises.

The FCC is targeting Christian radio programming and trying to take away the rights we have as Americans of FREE SPEECH. I feel personally attacked by the proposals of the FCC and I am writing to vehemently oppose this proposal.

Expecting your support,

Denise Jolly

04-233

4429 Hatchery Road
San Angelo, TX 76903
21 April 2008

Federal Communications Commission
MB Docket No. 04-233, Comments
445 12 Street SW
Washington, D.C. 20554

Dear Mr. Secretary,

I am writing this letter in response to the above referenced case. The proposed actions, if implemented, will adversely affect Christian radio stations. I believe the proposed actions, if implemented, would be a violation of our Constitution's freedom of religion and freedom of speech. I'm certain that you will carefully consider all the comments from concerned citizens and not implement the proposed policies. Thanks for your help in making sure we keep our Christian radio stations just like they are.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lee Renfroe

MB Docket No. 04-233
Comments in Response to Localism
Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Mike Jolly
1612 Cimmaron
Midland, Texas 79705-7458

FCC
445 12th St. SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Sir:

I am writing in response to what the FCC is proposing. I am appalled to think that our freedom of speech will be taken away if the FCC succeeds in what it is trying to do.

The FCC is targeting Christian radio programming and trying to take away the rights we have as Americans of FREE SPEECH. I believe something like this was tried once before in America and it was a mess. I am totally opposed to what the FCC is proposing and as an American, I am in total disbelief that my rights could so easily be taken away! I will fight this all the way!

Expecting some action to stop this,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Mike Jolly', with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Peter Schmidt
6522 Apollo Road
West Linn, OR 97068
503-656-6362

APR 23 2008

April 19, 2008

The Secretary
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Attn: Chief, Media Bureau

Re: MB Docket No. 04-233

Dear Media Bureau Chief:

I am a long-time listener and supporter of Christian Radio. I listen to it every day as I drive to work. The positive, encouraging music and messages help to prepare me for the day ahead. I am very distressed to learn that there are proposals in the works at the FCC which may cause my favorite radio station to change how it operates and more importantly, change its message of hope and encouragement.

I know that many listeners are young mothers with small children. Certainly there is no more family-friendly format or stations than those on Christian Radio which do not play songs with lyrics that contain profanity or encourage violence.

I urge the FCC not to adopt any of the rules, procedures or policies on the attached page.

Sincerely,

Peter Schmidt

Phone

April 18, 2008

MB DOCKET NO.04-233

Secretary of Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554
Attn: Chief, Media Bureau

We feel that our Constitutional Rights are at stake! Please do not change the rules for Christian Radio. K-LOVE programming is important to our family and friends. We listen every day for ministry and inspiration, both at home and while driving in our cars.

If you require Community Advisory Boards, they may not be friendly to K-LOVE's

Christian Mission. This would also require additional staffing and their Translator Stations might be forced off the air. We feel that our freedom of religion and freedom of speech are being threatened. We need this positive and encouraging programming!

Yours truly,

Linda Nothnagel August Nothnagel Jr.

Linda and August Nothnagel, Jr.
1149 E. 7th Place
Mesa, Arizona 85203-6409

MB Docket No. 04-233

April 22, 2008

Dear Sirs:

I do not think that the FCC should force K-Love to have advisory boards or in any way tamper with the First Amendment right to have free speech. K-Love is a very good station. I do not think that it would be fair for the FCC to impose so many rules that would raise the cost of running the station. K-Love is entirely supported by the people who listen to it.

Please do not impose rules that would make it financially hard for it to stay on the air.

Sincerely,

Kathy Martin (kmjog_2000@yahoo.com)

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Kathy Martin".

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

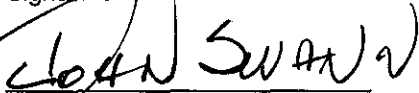

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

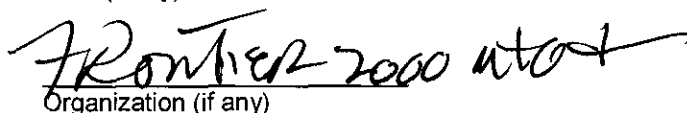

Signature

Name

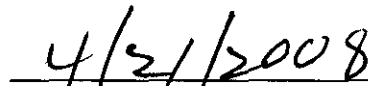

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

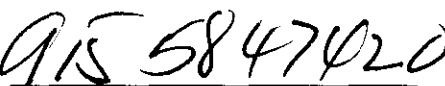

Date

Address

Phone

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Signature

Diane Hunter

Name

n/a

Title (if any)

n/a

Organization (if any)

4-22-08

Date

2290 Seneca Dr.

Address

Reno, NV 89506

775-972-7264

Phone

No. of Copies rec'd 0
List A B C D E

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Dolores Easter

Signature

4-22-08
Date

Dolores Easter

Name

2290 Seneca Dr.
Address
Ros, NJ 08806
775-972-7264
Phone

N/A
Title (if any)

N/A
Organization (if any)

No. of Copies rec'd 0
List A B C D E

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Vernon Goldsmith".

Signature

A handwritten name in black ink that reads "Vernon Goldsmith".

Name

A handwritten date in black ink that reads "4/21/08".

Date

A handwritten address in black ink that reads "2290 Seneca Dr. Reno, NV 89506".

Address

A handwritten phone number in black ink that reads "775 972-7264".

Phone

Title (if any)

No. of Copies rec'd 0
List A B C D E

Organization (if any)

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Signature

Date

Name

Phone

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

No. of Copies rec'd
List A B C D E

0

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Signature

JAMES KELEHER

Name

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

4-22-08
Date

601 N. Rook Ave
Address Tucson AZ 85711

520 745 1611
Phone

No. of Copies rec'd 0
List A B C D E

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Nancy Barrett

Signature

4-21-08
Date

Nancy Barrett
Name

4513 W. Alice Ave
Address
Glendale, AZ 85302

623 463 0550
Phone

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Patricia Ditttrick

Signature

4/19/08
Date

Patricia Ditttrick

Name

53 Castle ~~Ita~~ Ct.
Address
Maggie Valley, 28751
828-926-6952
Phone

N/A
Title (if any)

N/A
Organization (if any)

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

FCC-MAIL ROOM

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

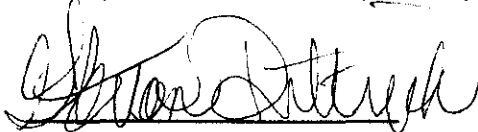

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

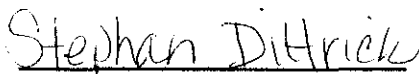

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Signature

Name

n/a Title (if any)

n/a
Organization (if any)

4/19/08
Date

53 Castle Ct.
Address
Pineapple Valley 28751
828-926-6952
Phone

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

FCC MAIL ROOM

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

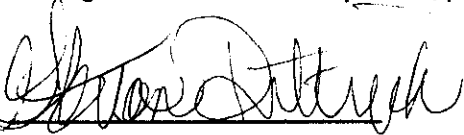

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

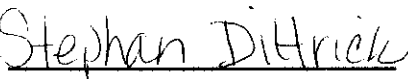

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

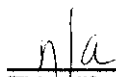

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

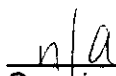

Signature

Name

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

4/19/08
Date

53 Castle Ct.
Address
Apple Valley 28751
828-926-6952
Phone

APR 28 2008
used Rulemaking (the

used Rulemaking (the rights. A number of

- t rights. A number of d.

to take advice from als would impose such

4/21/08

Date _____

3270 Downey Ave
Address Reno, NV 89503

Address

Phone 703-747-3054

Phone

Comments in Response to Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
MB Docket No. 04-233

APR 28 2008

I submit the following comments in response to the Localism Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (the "NPRM"), released Jan. 24, 2008, in MB Docket No. 04-233.

Any new FCC rules, policies or procedures must not violate First Amendment rights. A number of proposals discussed in the NPRM, if enacted, would do so – and must not be adopted.

(1) The FCC must not force radio stations, especially religious broadcasters, to take advice from people who do not share their values. The NPRM's proposed advisory board proposals would impose such unconstitutional mandates. Religious broadcasters who resist advice from those who don't share their values could face increased harassment, complaints and even loss of license for choosing to follow their own consciences, rather than allowing incompatible viewpoints to shape their programming. The First Amendment prohibits government, including the FCC, from dictating what viewpoints a broadcaster, particularly a religious broadcaster, must present.

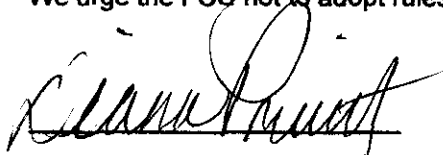

(2) The FCC must not turn every radio station into a public forum where anyone and everyone has rights to air time. Proposed public access requirements would do so – even if a religious broadcaster conscientiously objects to the message. The First Amendment forbids imposition of message delivery mandates on any religion.

(3) The FCC must not force revelation of specific editorial decision-making information. The choice of programming, especially religious programming, is not properly dictated by any government agency – and proposals to force reporting on such things as who produced what programs would intrude on constitutionally-protected editorial choices.

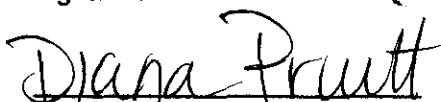

(4) The FCC must not establish a two-tiered renewal system in which certain licensees would be automatically barred from routine renewal application processing. The proposed mandatory special renewal review of certain classes of applicants by the Commissioners themselves would amount to coercion of religious broadcasters. Those who stay true to their consciences and present only the messages they correspond to their beliefs could face long, expensive and potentially ruinous renewal proceedings.

(5) Many Christian broadcasters operate on tight budgets, as do many smaller market secular stations. Keeping the electricity flowing is often a challenge. Yet, the Commission proposes to further squeeze niche and smaller market broadcasters, by substantially raising costs in two ways: (a) by requiring staff presence whenever a station is on the air and, (b) by further restricting main studio location choices. Raising costs with these proposals would force service cutbacks – and curtailed service is contrary to the public interest.

We urge the FCC not to adopt rules, procedures or policies discussed above.

Signature

Name

Title (if any)

Organization (if any)

4-21-08
Date

3270 Downey Ave
Address
Reno, NV

775-747-3054
Phone